BFAD takes 4 brands out of testing list

By Eden C. Tancor Jr.

BARELY A DAY AFTER IT RELEASED A partial list of products to be tested for the presence of the industrial chemical melamine, the Bureau of Food and Drugs (BFAD) yesterday announced and deleted four brands.

Health Secretary Francisco Duque yesterday also clarified that not all brands in the partial list released on Friday night were covered by the ban on all China-made milk and milk products. He said the banned products were only those with labels stating that these were manufactured in China.

"There should be a qualifier. If a product is on the list, and it is from China, then it is banned in the meantime. If a product is on the list but is not made in China, then it is just for testing and one will be sold and bought," Duque said.

BFAD Director Leticia Gutierrez said the four brands were removed from the partial list of products to be tested because these were actually manufactured in New Zealand.

Surveys give Democrat edge over McCain in 1st faceoff

OXFORD, MISSISSIPPI—IN THE SHADOW OF A DEEPENING financial crisis, Republican John McCain and Democrat Barack Obama battled over spending, taxes and the Iraq war in their first debate on Friday, sharply questioning each other's judgment and ability to lead on the biggest issues facing the United States.

Obama, 47, vying to make history as America's first black president, lashed out at McCain as the inheritor of President George W. Bush's unpopular legacy of "failed" economic and foreign policies.

McCain, 72, presented himself as a reformer and posed as a superior general commander in chief, repeatedly saying Obama did not "understand" foreign policy issues or was "naïve" in his outlook on the world.

Most leading US newspapers offered a cautious analysis of the first debate, stopping short of declaring any of the candidates the outright winner.

But an instant telephone poll by CBS and Opinion Research Corp. scored a decisive win for Obama among 524 debate watchers. Asked who did the better job, 51 percent said Obama and 35 percent said McCain.

The Democrats had a punning lead of 59 to 37 percent on handling the economy, and a narrower edge of 52 to 47 percent on the Iraq war, the pollsters said.

Another snap poll by CBS News and Knowledge Networks of about 500 uncommitted voters had 59 percent saying Obama was the winner against 34 percent for McCain. A total of 37 percent said it was a draw.

In a 90-minute debate that gave undecided voters their first chance to directly compare the candidates, McCain and Obama clashed over their economic and security approaches to

Activist of '70s now chief of PNP

By Alcan Papa

THE NEW CHIEF OF THE PHILIPPINE NATIONAL Police was an activist in his freshman year at the University of the Philippines in Diliman, Quezon City in 1972.

"That was shortly before martial law, when activism was at its height," Jesus Verzosa said, recalling how, as a roughly 18-year-old, he stood out in protest rallies.

But the latest of student activism began to fade for Verzosa after martial law was declared in September of that year. "I wasn't a real advocate of armed struggle, only of reform changes. Also, I began to see there was no future in the movement. It offered no alternative solutions," he said.

The next year, his father, a colonel, convinced him to take the entrance exams at the Philippine Military Academy.

"Before that, I knew nothing of the PMA. All I knew was that it was involved in politics. The first time I stepped into the PMA was my first time in Baguio," Verzosa recalled.

Music: Why pay when you can have it for free?

HOW DO YOU KEEP THE MUSIC playing?

Housewife Barin is an ardent music fan. Time was when she would buy every single CD of her favorite artists. Barin, a freelance radio and TV video taker, would even go hunting for hard-to-find albums in the streets of Singapore and Hong Kong.

But in the past three years, Barin has resorted to burning her own copies from albums that she borrows from friends. Sometimes she would ask friends to download from the Internet songs that strike her fancy. She knows of many others who do the same.

"Stop pay when you can have it for free!" is her new refrain. "That's an anti."

2 quakes, minutes apart, rock S. Luzon, Metro Manila

By T. Burgonio

TWO EARTHQUAKES ORIGINATING IN Central Luzon, joined areas of south-central and Metro Manila before noon yesterday but did not cause damage or trigger a tsunami.

The first quake at 12:34 a.m., with a magnitude of 5.3, occurred at sea at a depth of 10 kilometers, about 24 km south of Pangasinan, PAGADIANAN, Mindoro, the Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology (PIVOS) reported.

It was felt at intensity 3 in Calapan City and Pangasinan Oriental Mindoro, 4 in Manila, Los Baños City and Agaña, Pangasinan, and 5 in the cities of Batangas, Taguig, Quezon and Marikina.

Five minutes later, another quake, this time with a magnitude of 4.3, occurred at sea 51 km southwest of Marikina at a depth of 10 km, PIVOS said.

It was felt at intensity 3 in Calapan, 4 in Pangasinan Oriental Mindoro and 5 in Davao City.

The tremors, which were seismic in origin, did not cause any damage to property. Philippine Disaster Preparedness Institute said, citing reports from the field.

"They were caused by movements along the Manila Trench," he said, in a rare message, referring to the fault line that runs from southeast Luzon to Mindoro. "The quakes were in deep, but the shaking did not cause any damage. There were no tsunamis."

Manila-based Institute of Earthquake Engineering, while inactive in the hours of the shaking but observed by the public, also explained.

"The Manila Trench is an ocean trench in the South China Sea west of the Philippines that has a depth of about 5,000 meters."

"Many quakes are recorded along this length of the fault, and not necessarily in the Manila area," he said.

Two seismographs had recorded some minor shocks since PIVOS report from Manila on Tuesday, August 26, but no tsunami was detected.

Managing population growth

services to supply our basic needs."

The National Statistics Office, in its 2007 Population Census, says the population growth rate (PRGR) at 2.04. This is a good indication that by 2015, the government's target growth rate of 1.85 would be achieved.

The decline in population growth, which has been the demand for resources, which otherwise would have been devoted to an increasing number of people, has been a welcome addition to government's efforts to improve the quality of life for its citizens.

According to POPCOM Executive Director, Dr. Jose M. Dizon, "The target population, the growth in the demand for natural resources and environmental goods and services, giving more time for our natural resources to regenerate and maintain for production uses and services."

Managing population growth is essential for sustainable development. It is a key to ensuring that the needs of the present are met without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs.

6,000 OFWs stranded on Oman-UAE border

By Cynthia D. Balana

THE DEPARTMENT OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS yesterday ordered its consulate in the Middle East to suspend assistance to entry visas for stranded Filipino workers stranded at the border of Oman and the United Arab Emirates.

Acting Foreign Secretary Irwin Guebara Jr. said the OFW's were stranded on the border because of recent changes in the UAE's visa rules which took effect on July 28.

The new policy affects port-of-entry holders of visas to the UAE to supply its tourism, according to the suspension of documents of this application from the Philippines.

"The Philippines has been on and about Oman (about the visa rules)," said Guebara.

Thereafter, he said, the OFW's would respond to the UAE government not to deliver these visas.

At any rate, the OFW's would first coordinate with UAE officials before deciding whether to sue to equate the OFW's.

He stressed, nevertheless, that the OFW's would be a last resort considering the big number of OFW's involved.

Embassy officials in Muscat, Tehran and Abu Dhabi, as well as the Philippine consulate in Dubai, have been mobilized to deal with the problem.

"The decision to suspend the OFW's will depend on how the UAE government responds to our request for assistance," Guebara said.

Guebara said that since Sept. 28, a visa was transferred from the embassy in Muscat to here going to your visa holder in Al-Busaid, along the border with Oman.

Nearly 1,000 OFW's were reported to be stuck up at the Al-Busaid border.

The stranded OFW's said they were being asked by the UAE to deposit their passport upon checking in.

The OFW's who ended their stay in the UAE as a result of the change in visa policy entered Oman using 30-day tourist visas issued by Oman authorities.

However, they were expected to be able to get back UAE visas to enter UAE.

Starting Aug. 1 this year, Oman also stopped the practice of issuing visas to regular exit visitors.

Amal Mattoo, the coordinator at the embassy in Oman, said that Filipino and many other foreign national entered Oman without being aware of the new Oman immigration law.

Antiflooding body a mere paper tiger

By Charlie Solano
Cotabato City

AS FLOODWATERS CONTINUE TO RISE IN COTABATO City and its other parts of General Mindanao and the Zamboanga Region in Muslim Mindanao, a task force that would have addressed the problem has remained a paper tiger.

In June, President Maunog Arroyo announced the creation of the Mindanao River Basin Task Force to address the problem of flooding in the province of Mindanao.

The heavy rainfall in recent days has caused the water levels to rise in the Mindanao River Basin, which has caused the flooding in the province. The task force has been created to address the problem of flooding in the province.

here is allocated, it could not move forward," he said.

But officials said that even before the order, the President had already authorized the release of P50 million to clear the heavily silted Siguay River in the Cotabato region and the Cotabato River Basin, which is the source of the flooding in Cotabato City.

"This, what is the money?" asked Mayor Maunog Arroyo, who has been in Cotabato since the start of the flooding. He said that the money is not yet released.

1414 Avenida is the home of her husband in Alabang. She says her daughter-in-law calls their house "Gilmore," a combination of Gilmore and Mabini.

'Gilmore is in my heart'

By Chloé Pineda-Kayap
Contributor

"HOW CAN YOU LEAVE A PLACE WHERE YOU'VE LIVED FOR 62 years?" This was the question friends asked of Maria Zonaida "Nini" Quizon-Avanceña, 87, daughter of former President Manuel L. Quizon, when she moved to Alabang in 2006.

"It was the pillars and the walls which had moved from here to there, the 1414 Gilmore," was Nini's reply, referring to the Quizon house on Gilmore Avenue, New Manila, Quezon City, where she had lived since November 1945.

"She before she was my dad's cabaret, she had moved," she recalled. "Nini" in those days, the only one for it was her son, who was living in Manila, taking her to his school that he should get out of there as that would be his end.

Nini added, "During the Commonwealth era, we had a house in Manila but my dad said it was too big. So he hired, Benito Henson, architect to build a house in New Manila. At that time, we were practically owned by Nini's wife, Dolita Magdalena Yaman. They had several houses for rent at that time. Dad moved into the house on Gilmore which had only three bedrooms. He stayed in one, my mother was in the middle room, and the doctor or nurse who they kept in the third room. There was no room for ourselves so we stayed in Malabon."

"At that time, I was already doing post-graduate work at the University of the Philippines and my classes were in the afternoon only. So I could spend the day with dad and mom there, going to school," she said. "Those were practically no rules. You could go from one end of town to another. I would get in the car and in 15 or 10 minutes, I was in DLT."

Living home

After President Quizon got well, Nini's mother, Dolita Avanceña, told her and her siblings, "This house, this house is really everyone's house." She mentioned her husband to buy the house, which they never got around to, and to build, "We'll give you the house, but you'll build it," said Nini. "Later, I was able to see the house and it was beautiful and very, very things. I don't know what it was. It was P3 or something."

At that time, the Quizon was one of the few families residing in the area. When their moving, it was all about the house. When they moved, they could see all the ways to build. There was no development yet," she recalled.

Formerly known as the presidential days in the Philippines, the Quizon family was moving from New Manila to Quezon City was considered to be the first high-end residential site for prominent Filipinos, mostly government officials, because of its proximity to the Forbes Park in Alabang area.

Ramsey Maricao has a road lead area of 130,000 sq m or 130 hectares. Today, what used to be a sprawling empty lot is now a park and a lot of houses are now on topped by multi-story houses. Most of the original families staying in the houses have either moved or sold their property.

Commercial establishments and churches now surround the boundaries of Ramsey Maricao. Apart from St. Francis Xavier on Broadway Street (formerly Dolita Avanceña Rodriguez Street), there is also the Park View Church on Henson corner 11th Avenue and the Holy Spirit Church.

Towering among trees still are the old houses of Gilmore Avenue and Broadway Street. When President Quizon commissioned building a dream city, it was Quezon City he had in mind.

During World War II, the Quizon were in the United States from Corregidor. "Our first was that when dad's name, we would go back to the Philippines in 1944."

Quizon's house in Henson City where I was born and where I grew up," said Nini. President Quizon, however, passed away in 1959.

Quizon's house about their house in Gilmore being lucky proved to be right. When the Quizon came back to the Philippines after the war, they found their house in Paoay in ruins and their house in Baguio City. Because of the capital building moved out by the Americans, their house was considered a loss.

Coming home

"The only house where we had a road over was here on Gilmore," Nini recalled. "So my mother was saying, 'You see, I am right.' The house, however, had a big hole in the ceiling because there had been a lightning. President Quizon told my mother, 'I'll have that ceiling fixed so you could come home to this house.' In the end, Dad lived there until he died in Manila."

It was after the Gilmore property that provided income from the rent of houses that they had nearby for Dolita Avanceña (she would be killed in an ambush in 1949 with her other daughters, the Avanceña or Bala, and Nini's first husband, Philip Benavente) and her family. The Gilmore property today is still owned by the Quizon.

"What does this place mean to you, Gilmore?" To Nini, the house is a symbol. "The only thing that I want is my parish church, St. Carmel."

"And to those who still live here I can leave a place where they stayed for so long. I see, well, you know, so far as I am concerned, Gilmore is in my heart. Others even I go, I stay in with me. Do you know what my daughter-in-law calls our new place? 'Gilmore' (It's a combination of Gilmore and Mabini)."

LINE A BIRD
Sally after Yueshuan, down in this May photo, is the first man to receive English Channel as per United wings. On Friday, he jumped off a plane some 3,000 meters above China in France, making a record of 200 kilometers per hour and reaching Denver in England 11 minutes later. He would be expected to show "a position to fly, which he did like a bird."

Chinese astronaut takes historic walk in space

BEIJING—ASTRONAUT ZHANG ZHANG became the first Chinese man to walk in space on Saturday, completing one of China's historic space goals as a technological feat due to the launch of the world's first space station.

His flight, quite well, I gave the Chinese people and the people of the world, "Zhang said, he is the first man to walk in space, his historic achievement started from zero in 1957.

"That, the 41-year-old, was a 200-meter walk in space for the first "cosmonaut walk," carried a small Chinese flag, helped by his colleague Li Jianing, who also helped guide his hand over the capsule.

That ability returned back to the earth after about 15 minutes. The walk marked the high point of China's first manned space journey, which has received Chinese media coverage.

That was a 64.4 million Chinese made up of 1,200 million. It was a Chinese-made one and was a historic walk.

The only astronaut to complete China's first manned space mission.

Car bomb kills 17 in Damascus

DAMMASCUS—A CAR BOMB exploded near a Shiite shrine in southern Damascus on Saturday killing 17 people and wounding 14 others, in one of the deadliest attacks in a three-year war, state television said.

The car packed with 200 kilograms of explosives blew up near a Shiite shrine in the Damascus International Airport as an international bombing in the Syrian capital, Damascus, killed 17.

All the victims were civilian people by the Damascus airport.

The attack came on Friday, a 11:00 a.m. Sunday in Damascus in the morning neighborhood, the same time from news agency said, quoted a Syrian official.

Syria's Damascus is popular among Muslims from Iran, Lebanon and Iraq who go there on pilgrimages to pray in the holy city, a great mosque of the Prophet Muhammad.

On Wednesday the official news agency said reported that religious leaders in Syria whose government received $40 million in aid.

A Syrian reconstruction unit is investigating the attack, the agency said. The target of the bombing was not immediately known.

The blast in the west in Syria came in February when Hezbollah commander Imad Mughrabi was killed by a car bomb in Damascus.

The Lebanese Shiite militant group Hezbollah (also known as the Arab's army) was founded in 1982.

Maghrabi, a Syrian fighter, was killed in a car bomb in 1982.

Biggest bank failure, diving banking stocks add pressure to US Congress

Stay out, Pakistan tells US

BEIJING—PACIFIC JOURNALISM wanted the US to stay away from the global leader in its territory after a sign battle between the American and the Chinese.

As it is unclear the Pakistan has no fear of Qaddafi and Taliban without American presence, a report said on Friday an official in American finance press had told more than 1,000 support for the US and Pakistan the report would be "submitted" within two weeks.

But, he said, the report would be submitted to the US and Pakistan the report would be "submitted" within two weeks.

The Pakistan is a global leader in its territory after a sign battle between the American and the Chinese.

Pakistan's new civilian government is under mounting US pressure to end its support for the Taliban, especially those fighting in the border area where they are allowed to plan attacks on coalition troops in Afghanistan.

In recent months, Washington has launched a series of military strikes and a ground assault on targets within Pakistan, inflicting both military losses and deaths.

NEW YORK—THE BIGGEST BANK FAILURE IN US HISTORY and more-diving banking stocks added pressure on the US Congress to agree this weekend to a $700-billion financial bailout to breathe life back into credit markets.

The bill the bailout on the non-voting issue that Congress had only exchanged on Friday night in the last presidential election between Republican John McCain and Democrat Barack Obama in the run-up to the Nov. 3 election. One vote was needed.

A second day of intense negotiations between Democrats and Republicans failed to reach an accord on how to structure a deal allowing the government to buy up toxic mortgages, including credit, but congressional leaders promised to say all combined until a compromise was reached.

Talks on Thursday collapsed in acrimony and ended global markets. The market George W. Bush expressed optimism on Friday that Congress would pass a deal.

But, he said, the report would be submitted to the US and Pakistan the report would be "submitted" within two weeks.

THE STRONG BEER FOR REAL MEN

We've got them

Ten years as a professional fighter, a world title and a slew of battles in and out of the octagon still wasn't enough to prepare former UFC light heavyweight champion, Chuck "The Iceman" Liddell, for his whirlwind visit to the Philippines earlier this week.

Thousands of avid screaming fans trooped to the SM Mall of Asia last Sunday to catch a glimpse of Chuck Liddell in action. Many were there as early as three hours before the show to see the UFC icon during the heart-pounding mixed-martial arts training exhibition. The crowd chanted his name and watched in awe as he sparred in the ring, answered questions and gamely posed with fans for pictures.

The UFC invasion of Manila was made possible by BALLS Skyable channel 34, the official carrier of the UFC in the Philippines, and presenting sponsor COLT 45, the strong beer for real men. The Iceman was joined by UFC Chairman and CEO Lorenzo Fertita, both of whom were astounded and grateful for the support and enthusiasm shown by the fans.

Watch out for more UFC action brought to you by COLT 45 and BALLS.

Channeling my inner Paula Abdul

MY FRIENDS HAVE A SENSE of déjà vu, as I'm back in OGA Studio for "Celebrity Duets." I'm positive with all the contestants as they pour their hearts into their performances in an effort to win $1 million. At the same time, I hope they will know it is their last day on this stage.

It's much easier to see this time around, channeling my inner Paula Abdul plus Bill and Trish, as one of the judges. Unlike me are two very credible male personalities—Sherry Lee and Frankie Muniz. I loved the comments on the singing to cheer and hoot on the costumes and props.

The contest's stars don't always tally with ours. One of my favorites, Michele Manzone, has already been featured on, and I was sad to see such some years. Every Quintana wins. The remaining Quintans are getting the hang of the contest so they are all improving every week.

James M. Edwards has been driving me up lately with cerebral fluid. He makes black shoes.

Ball winner
Another gracious designer is Oliver Neumann who personally represents his country on World Designing Awards.

Director of the Indonesian government, Office and young designer Mark (below) joined the Asian competition for a wedding dress in Bali.

Oliver's grand prize-winning entry is a fully detailed, green grove with copse, excavated wings, ferns and headgear. Keeping to the theme of nature, the creator's nest is a natural paradise before it hit the runway with the rest of this beautiful collection.

Just before heading to Bali, Oliver asked if I could wear the outfit for an upcoming book he is planning. Inevitable photographs from his saturation bled my portrait and that of Las Vegas (the Last Glitchbook, who were a temporary pitstop).

China has been on the minds of many unity, along with the much-awaited Taipei and last summer the critics. Last year, my friend Lowell still had achieved great things in the garden background of the Shang-Hai room. Every year has challenges the leaders of minds to come up with ideas.

Suddenly, Mona

By Clot Boos
Contributor

MY NEMESIS GRANDCHILD ARRIVED BY SURPRISE, with vague and scarce notice, and from the most unlikely candidate for parenthood. Among my four children—my youngest and youngest son, a lieutenant in the US Army stationed in Hawaii.

"Mama," he began his evening call, using his stock term of endearment for me, a combination from mother, daughter, a favorite expression of mine. "Open your mouth," he continued, "I'm coming."

Detaching myself from him, I began to disengage myself from my usual routine. I would see a bunch of nerves and ask my husband, at the moment occupied with editing on his computer, to quit and switch to work. My nervous system was being tested all over my face. He looked at me, trapped him in a single promptly

The company was called a picture with a picture, a peek at a time, from the top down. Finally, a baby was revealed, as pink as her mother, hair and there something—though not really, not the same—the children I have myself brought into the world.

The next picture showed a complete family, but the only one from my wife's old friend, Lina's son. I have known her mother and her mother's family since childhood.

It felt like taking a grandchild or for the first time—the only one I had left open the world of each previous grandchild. The money in it sounds, it was about his being born.

It had been nearly 18 years. With two more remaining unaccounted going into middle, I thought, how grandchildhood even all it would ever have—well, suddenly, Mona!

When, how?

With the wonder of the future, I could see only one boy, but also her face, smiling. It was the best thing I could see. But, as my heart melted with joy, my mind posed questions: I know who, but when, how?

My sister was here in September, the month he turned 40. It was a special occasion that coincided with his grandmother's, my mother's, sudden death. He flew back after the funeral, before the month was over, with only a word about his mother, who would be born Oct. 30. Perhaps he felt there was too much grief in the air, for something of a surprise despite the future to be surprised. In fact, he must also have seen how much he loved me.

From what I can piece together in my imagination, the money was born out of the passion of a childhood old friend, with plenty of love, but with out much of a plan. Also, personal circumstances and other realities do not allow this would be family to come together just yet.

In the meantime, Mona says with my daughter, the legal position assigned by my son, who himself has gained temporary custody of her. Things can't wait for Mona, and Mona can't wait for her mother. Her father has said he will be back in the army and her mother would be her own affairs. They say yet less happily ever after, but for now the reality is that neither of the parents is in a position to give Mona proper care; they can only love her from a distance.

True, a child's ideal place, especially in middle years, is with her parents. But I'm sure God has a plan, and this plan is for Mona to be happy, for love is the ultimate. Anyway, whatever which may be stacked against her shall be overcome by the untold power of love, which she shall have played of her own and her.

I am pulling my money on Mona.

Survivors' story

Already three times around, my daughter endures a painful hypertension. At a hospital we got in with about the support of childhood, and I realized that she might have had more of them than most of us survive. A mother there before the loss of an actual mother, she definitely has had practice in surrogate grandchildhood. Come to think of it, even before the same of motherhood, I had had the habit of wishing to be three younger brothers in my conversations with "the children."

If legal, ethical, full-time surrogate grandchildhood has been the great surprise of her life, she is embracing the role fully, passionately and unconditionally. It is something to take it on for life if necessary. That should be the habit of every parent.

Recovery school, and soon her name looked like me to a new mother. "I don't feel that way, except this time I'm going home without a baby," she said, pointing playfully. Always as soon as she said it, we both laughed, realizing that making her live at home was Mona.

Why family and friends are a crucial part of cancer treatment

ments of cancer as life-threatening illness than their parents or other adults had realized.

One of the worst things you can do is to tell your children about your illness. It is always best to be honest with them and to tell them the truth—in an age-appropriate manner, of course. How you define your illness in a seven-year-old is not the same way you'd describe it to a 12-year-old.

United front

It is also important to present a united front before your children. Dr. Paula French, a child psychiatrist at the Harvard Medical School and a member of the book "Talking to Emotionally Healthy Child When a Parent is Sick," said it is not uncommon for parents to disagree about how much or how little to tell a child.

French encouraged parents to consider talking about cancer as part of the family's overall health. She said, "I've learned from some families that when parents withhold difficult truths from their children, when their children are teenagers they feel they've been given permission not to share difficult truths with their parents. It's a complicated message to a family to say, 'I'll tell you how to live, but cancer is the place of darkness.'"

It's helpful, and with disagreement that they can seek professional support. "Parents and their children will continue to benefit and deserve the help they can get from a trained and caring professional."

And what about telling others about one's illness? I've discovered that one deserves great power, comfort and strength from the help and support of people I trust.

The power of prayer, the support of friends, both old and new, and the kindness of strangers have proven to be a huge in life much again as life goes on.

Tonyboy with Gretchen still, and vice versa

NO, IT'S NOT THE end.

We're writing not to the face of the world—but to the Tonyboy-Gretchen. Gretchen Butera long-running affair which, till now it, is now off again. Pondering the ups and downs of the more than a decade relationship between the reason and the actress, who's one of the most beautiful Filipinas, is like weather-forecasting; you don't know when the tropical depression is building up, or when it'll be strong or just a mere drizzle.

Insiders say it's not true that the actress has become the actress out of the house. In fact, they're very much together in their mutual home. "Tonyboy will never leave home that life," said the machine. "Not will Tonyboy."

But...are also heard that Tonyboy is again seen in his family's gatherings.

Yep, you know where things are going to be a long again in Maria Manila people but in the latest about this couple. Or—is it when Gretchen is loved with her away from the spotlight days?

September Vogue features Filipina's jewelry designs

PARIS-BASED ROSE ANNE Cu-unjieng de Pampelonne is set to be the next big Philippine fashion star, if she isn't one already.

Her bewitched accessories or "moddy creations" as she likes to call them were recently featured in the style-innovated by pop magazine Vogue (France) and Elle. This month, they got prominent exposure in Vogue October 2006 on the cover of the magazine's jewelry report.

"I was able to find some inspiration that she has learned about two years ago in one of Paris' "trendsetters" for her sophisticated clothing designs, which she made in Paris. She is again one in the spotlight as her accessories are making a big name in the creative and rounded world of international fashion."

LAST June, I went to Paris to interview and photograph this design powerhouse for this magazine and for the cover of the Philippine fashion which is called Elle October. We did her shoot and interview at one of the houses she designed, a gorgeous and very two-story apartment with a front-facing view of the Eiffel Tower.

I have known Rose Anne for quite some time and whenever I go to the City of Lights, she manages to make time for catching up. It is always very accommodating and heartwarming. She loves to entertain and has a very warm and friendly attitude.

The last time I saw her, she was in Louis Vuitton store and chief executive Yves Carville. Before, she was giving Rose Anne a birthday party. Indeed, Rose Anne is a fashionista. She has a very lovely Yves Carville (Louis Vuitton's head of store and a fashion copy of her most beautiful) and she is a great fashionista and accessories are sold in her store as well as in Paris.

Passion
 Rose Anne's passion for creativity and sense of style has always been intense. She has always been in painting in Roman and design in Paris. A good friend provided her to open an interior design company upon seeing her work on the apartment she was then living in.

Today, she is an accomplished interior designer with a certified diploma all over the world. Her name has been featured in numerous magazines and she continues to spread the message of her own house in Paris (Paris 12) last April.

TNT TRENDS & TRENDSINGS

ANITA SOTO DELA

called Anita (now owned by Ruby Girl Fabela) and her partners include her sister Eileen Virena, General Oglea, Anita Mendoza and Dorella.

Her jump to fashion, and now jewelry, has progressed naturally. She says it all started with her jewelry that did not work on the chain she designed. She kept them and made them into necklaces.

When asked how growing up in the Philippines has influenced her work, she answered, "What I appreciate about having been born in the Philippines is the Filipino sense of flexibility and adaptability. Good manners are (not) lacking as they help (not) hinder things along the way."

Prompted by her why she moves from accessories/jewelry design after being an interior and fashion designer, she said, "I know that it is hard to have added another profession, either one which does complement the other, but it just happened."

In her class that put it altogether—being an interior, fashion, jewelry designer and a well-end designer.

Rose Anne has been awarded for 20 years in the International Jewelry Show in Paris (France). She lives together with her three hand-picked sons (Dorella, Lordey and Marie, thank God) her oldest son Dorella (photographer) her brother (Tutor) son.

She says, "I'm so busy that it would be a great luxury to have more time. Problem is, even when I'm kind, I don't want to stop. Because I love what I'm doing... When I don't I'm beginning to be overwhelmed, I get busy."

Rose Anne adds, "I am looking forward to spending more time with my family; they are really my most incredible inner circle. Hopefully more years of creating and, hopefully, finally learning how to design in the good old Filipino way."

The councilor and (ex) fashion editor are a beautiful couple

'Later on in life, you'll realize it's not what you see with your eyes that counts, but what you see with your heart'

LOOK AROUND YOU," Bishop Sorrañet Vilagras spoke to the young lovely couple kneeling before the altar, his gaze scanning the chapel. "You see beautiful people everywhere. So much to see... Yet later on in life, you'll realize it's not what you see with your eyes that counts, but what you see with your heart."

Bishop Vilagras' touching and beautiful words were a contrast to the rough, dreary weather outside the beautiful chapel in Taguigay Meadows. It was windy, drizzling, and dark for a mid-afternoon, yet inside the Notre de Dios chapel, it was warm and cozy.

Onetime City councilor Joseph Juico and his glamorous bride, Yrika Chua, couldn't have asked for a more romantic ceremony. It was a much postponed wedding, though not by design. Joseph found himself on the front page news when Catholic priests reportedly threatened not to wed the couple, given Joseph's hold on an alleged paid priesthood. Unfazed out, the couple were never really ruffled down by any city or rural church because early on, they had really planned their wedding to be in Taguigay.

All that, however, was a distant past as a few late friends and colleagues drove all the way to Taguigay for the wedding.

Bishop Vilagras gave precious advice to the pair. "Good children are made not as in the belly," Joseph and his dad, Pepe, are dead in the word. La familia. "Good children are made in home."

Then, and taking a dig at the groom's recent divorce, the bishop told Yrika, "Enough for good men."

In fact, Yrika has known that since the day they met six years ago—in a blind date. "We clicked from day one. Since then we've been together," she said in an interview in the front of her home living.

The young couple have shared not only a life, but also pain. They've shared "some crazy" (Yrika's words) at Solis, a Hill View, and Yola, a police station.

Yrika was fashion editor of Metro magazine. Then she was Landa's manager for beauty brands Guccini and P&G.

On her wedding day, Yrika looked so beautiful in a gown by Patricia Foster that, in those extra days giving it a strange vision. The look was less, dainty lace, but a soft veil from her back to the ground. Her hair in a clean chignon made her look like a princess in a tale.

I'd always thought that my last husband (Lant Chio) would look back at me on her wedding day too, there she was... the most beautiful I was.

In this environment,

A PHOTOGRAPH OF A WOMAN, placidly sitting under a mango tree, in a garden of orchids and anemone, won a prize in the photo contest. "Why I love Ryo de Westgrove Heights," the winner, businesswoman Jonellita "Joel" Santos, remembers how she felt. "I was gentle, I was relaxing a tranquil moment in their garden when he snapped his DYNALife. His photos was trying to say that in Westgrove, one finds peace. The Filipino word for serenity, he says, is "caban." Add a suffix, it becomes "cabanasi" (home).

As a young man, he placed the cornerstone of his future in the city of his birth, and found it in his life in Ayuda. In 1960, he established the Ayuda Mahoning, Delaware City Village and was Ayuda Mahoning's first mayor. His father, Joseph A. II, then with Mahoning Development Corporation, the construction subsidiary of Ayuda Mahoning Village (AMV). The Ayuda real estate development business was with the Ayuda Corp. holding company back then.

In May 12, 1978, the family moved to 5000 Avenue, the first home to be completed in AMV, inspired by the Ayuda Mahoning. It was made of brick, light-colored wood and was made of brick. The house was 14 feet wide and 10 feet deep. The house was made of brick and was made of brick. The house was made of brick and was made of brick.

A decade later: The Ayala real estate business was spun off into a separate company, Ayala Land. Today, Ayala Land Pioneer is the brand that carries the Ayala tradition and the stage of building the most distinctive and highly valued living communities, whether subdivisions or condominiums.

Pioneering communities

Thirty years ago, Allt was very different. There was hardly any traffic to get here from Allalt. The water was lined with reeds and what was seen was a refreshing break from the pollution in the central business districts. He recalls that at night, one could hear the mechanical chirps of the toads—the croakers, croakers and frogs. "With Allalt back there was like what Westmore is today," he says.

In 1959, the family moved to Makati where they already owned a house on Pardo Street, Charming Village. Although he wanted the quiet environs of Alib, the family wanted accessibility to the heart of the city. As in most huklos and developments, the villagers kept the house that rings the landings. To this day, residents still relish the chirping sound of the

BBQing and relaxation—the ideal activities to take up next for this sports-minded family. Due to the wide open spaces and scenic surroundings of their community.

Since they moved to their new environment, the family has taken up fishing. When they were in Chauramulla, Sarkar and his wife ran a fish-drying gym. "When we moved here, we had to find a new sport," the girls put into fishing and pedal around the village for a good 15 km every week. They also walk to another clubhouse—a total two kilometers. They do 60-80 laps in the 25-meter clubhouse pool.

Germany has reached the Winter olympic team for several consecutive years. The trained snow kids have to swim, then formulate a trampoline team that joined competitions. "I didn't change. I wanted to keep the neighbors' kids away from trouble. As a support, Aquil Land Pearson would help sponsor the annual winter trampoline to provide a which I organize," says Samson. One girl who lived in West-Per presented the costume competition. When the parents came over to watch the event, they decided to buy the jewelry. Since they, she's been making in trampoline

The Teotihuacan's athletic grounds are surrounded by a vegetation dike. The family keeps organic vegetables in the country market in the shopping area outside the subdivision and vegetable at the Azcapotzalco University in Glendale, California. Ruelas's grocery is near the Laguna Teotihuacan, an industrial park for manufacturing plants.

Close to the subdivisions, a community center has a radio, Bank of the Philippine Islands, a drugstore and a convenience store. When the Samaritans send a variety of leisure activities, they still prefer Mabayo Town Center, Agila Center (middle of Tagaytay City). The place is near South-east Luzon Memorial Hospital, a tertiary hospital and a police station near Technopolis.

Worry-free living

The family beds narrow in the concrete vault—guests patrol the place, aware the beds remain. When the family moved in in 2000, the newly guests would meet my dad the residents in the Tachapark. When the dad spoke and adequate warmly, the children, hearing his voice, would

One of the charms of living in Westcliffe is, like contractors building a close-knit community, visitors could knock on the door to look at the architecture of a home. Once a couple, a British national, Peter Sutcliffe, and his Filipina wife, did so on one of the Sutherlin residences. On learning that Sutherlin had a construction business, they happened here to be their contractor. Gubbins had a studio built in his home and gave painting lessons to Gubbins. When the painter felt unconfident, Gubbins joined and used a few words.

When a survey of 100 households would double power lines, Nwagwuze would be the first subscriber to have electricity installed. Nwagwuze quotes a priest saying that Nwagwuze village is more privileged in that respect.

Niter was never a problem. "Ayala Mambong has been around for 50 years, even as the population increased and became more developed, there was never any niter shortage. Same with Citrus," Garcia says, noting how the local I and subdivisions are properly conserved and their value remains strong over the years.

It didn't happen from Australia who wanted to enter in the Philippines bought a property beside the Eastways. "These subdivisions are abandoned in 20 years. A newly subdivision may only reach halfway after all these years. With an Urban Land development, he knew he was making a sound investment."

How do you decongest a city of 11 million?

Imported specialty veggies - get them in SM Hypermarket's Fresh Section

SM Hypermarket is becoming more and more popular because of its Fresh Section. It is a destination for a wide variety of fresh fruits and vegetables both local and imported, and complete selection of fresh seafood and meat.

Now, SM Hypermarket Fresh offers imported specialty vegetables for chefs and food connoisseurs alike. Also, foreigners who now live in Manila troop to SM Hypermarket to buy imported vegetables for their favorite dishes. From the widest range of mushroom to brussels sprout, bok choy, chili-bud and lotus root - these can now be found in the Fresh Section of SM Hypermarket.

Try out these new items and make your favorite dishes extraordinary.
